For small businesses providing health insurance to employees is a priority, but affordability is an increasing concern. That's why Dade Construction Corp. turned to the Greater Health Trust (GHT), an insurance program created by the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce and AvMed for small business members. The program provides large employer group health benefits at prices small businesses can afford.

"At Dade Construction Corp. we believe that with the right team we can build anything. That's why it was important for us to put our people first when it came to providing them health insurance," said Jonathan Cuesta, president at Dade Construction Corp. "With GHT we secured a very reasonable rate. Our health care cost rose 30% but, for the first time in years we were able to save 20% on our healthcare cost and shared in that savings with our staff."

Founded in 2011, Dade Construction Corp. is a commercial interior contractor based in South Florida specializing in office spaces, medical facilities, educational centers, retail stores, and restaurants. Company operates throughout the tri-county area. For more information visit dadeconstruction.com.

Currently, GHT offers the most competitive small group health insurance product in the South Florida market. The average savings on the health insurance premiums the GHT has achieved is 20%. If you're a qualifying small business owner, you can apply for small business health insurance at any time of year since switching health insurance can be done any month throughout the year.

With healthcare increasingly inaccessible to so many, GHT offers affordable health insurance option for small businesses with two to 50 employees, who will save money on health insurance, without having to wait for the next enrollment period. Small businesses must be members of the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce to access benefits of the Greater Health Trust. Benefits also make businesses more competitive as employees take advantage of the program.

“The Greater Health Trust was created with the goal of addressing small businesses' unique challenges such as being able to provide affordable health insurance that fits within their budget,” said Alfred Sanchez, president and chief executive officer at Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce. “GHT is an invaluable asset to small businesses members looking to provide robust, but affordable healthcare options for their employees.”
